Boxx – massive softness

- BOXX is a kind of lounge furniture. Intention of designer, Marek Gawlik, was to make it exceptionally comfortable, encouragingly soft and cosy. A modular structure allows to change its configurations from armchairs and chaise lounges to couches and corner sofas in sizes ranging from S to XXL. The regular structure has an incredible aesthetic value that accentuates the softness of its massive shape; what is more, inside there is a perfect-ergo system which guarantees exquisite comfort. I suggest filling low backs with loose, profiled cushions. Inspiration for BOXX were classic Chesterfield sofas and ideas of contemporary fashion creators who promote spacious designs and quilting. For this reason, perhaps, it looks best if upholstered with plain, thick fabrics in elegant shades of black or grey, or with soft leather in a deep shade of dark chocolate.

Marek Gawlik, designer

Associated with Iker from the day it was established. The company's focus on creating its own unique furniture style allowed him for unhindered approach to design and putting form and function before structure. It was him who prepared complete project documentation and who carefully monitored making prototypes, having in this way full control over the entire production process and its final results.
